★★★★★★★★ STAFF NOTES ★★★★★★★★

This month's new contributors:

Luke Holland grew up in Paraguay, and after leaving it for 17 years, returned to photograph the situation of the country's Indian groups. His exhibit called, "Indians, Missionaries and the Promised Land" will begin a tour of the United States starting in June. The exhibit considers "two of the principal threats to the physical and cultural survival of Paraguay's Indians—the loss of their lands and the loss of their identity." For more information and a schedule of the tour, contact Survival International USA, 245 Fifth Ave., New York, NY 10016.

Lee Miller is an artist who works for Religious Task Force in Washington, D.C.

Jenny Pearce, graphic artist, has just graduated from Parsons School of Design.

Peter Thomson is a student at Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio.

In recent years the massive influx of colonists, for the most part Brazilians, to areas previously sparsely populated, has signalled the systematic destruction of the forest cover in Eastern Paraguay. Forest Indians, who are dependent on a traditional pattern of subsist ence agriculture, are being displaced by these changes.

Life is a prison.

Love is a prison.

Truth is a prison.

Faith is a prison.

The only thing that isn't a prison is prison.

It's hell.
